Fostering active citizenship and entrepreneurship among young migrant women through Community Gardens

Building skills, growing opportunities: the SUCCSEEDS Training Curriculum

How can community gardens become spaces for inclusion, empowerment and entrepreneurship? The SUCCSEEDS project is exploring this question through the development of its new Training Curriculum on social inclusion and active citizenship through entrepreneurship in Community Gardens.

Designed for youth workers and community educators, the curriculum provides practical knowledge, methods and tools to support young migrant women in developing the skills, confidence and connections needed to participate actively in their communities and explore sustainable entrepreneurial opportunities.

The Training Curriculum is structured around five complementary Learning Units:

Empowering Young Migrant Women through Green Entrepreneurship
Introduces green transition concepts and provides approaches to help young migrant women recognise entrepreneurial opportunities and overcome barriers to starting their own initiatives.

Digital and Financial Skills for Migrant Women's Green Businesses
Focuses on strengthening digital literacy and financial skills, supporting young migrant women in becoming more independent and confident when developing green businesses.

Community Gardens as Spaces for Social and Economic Inclusion
Explores how community gardens can become powerful environments for empowerment, sustainability, community participation and income generation.

Leadership, Networking and Social Impact for Migrant Women
Provides tools to develop leadership, networking and social-impact skills, helping young migrant women build confidence, strengthen connections and take an active role in their communities.

Scaling and Sustaining Green Businesses for Long-Term Impact
Supports youth workers in helping young migrant women launch, sustain and scale green income-generating activities while creating lasting social and environmental value.

From learning to action

Together, the five Learning Units create a progressive learning journey that connects personal empowerment, green skills, entrepreneurship, community participation and social impact.

Through the SUCCSEEDS Training Curriculum, community gardens are not only places to grow food, they become places to grow skills, build networks, create opportunities and strengthen communities.

What's next?

The next phase of the SUCCSEEDS project will focus on bringing these learning resources closer to youth workers, community educators and young migrant women, supporting their practical application in local community garden settings.

SUCCSEEDS: growing opportunities through inclusion, entrepreneurship and community action.

The SUCCSEEDS journey

EMPOWER → SKILL UP → GROW TOGETHER → CONNECT & LEAD → SCALE & SUSTAIN

The SUCCSEEDS Training Curriculum follows a progressive journey designed to help young migrant women move from building confidence and entrepreneurial awareness to creating and sustaining green opportunities.

The journey begins with Empower, developing the knowledge and confidence needed to recognise opportunities within the green transition.

It then moves to Skill Up, strengthening the digital and financial competences required to turn ideas into viable initiatives.

Through Grow Together, community gardens become practical spaces for learning, participation, social connection and income generation.

The next step, Connect & Lead, focuses on leadership, networking and the ability to create positive social impact.

Finally, Scale & Sustain supports young migrant women in consolidating and expanding their green businesses, ensuring that their initiatives can generate lasting economic, social and environmental value.

Together, these five stages create a pathway where skills become opportunities, opportunities become action, and action contributes to more inclusive and sustainable communities.
