Fostering active citizenship and entrepreneurship among young migrant women through Community Gardens

From Learning to Action:
Practical Tools for Inclusion and Green Entrepreneurship

The SUCCSEEDS project is moving forward with the development of practical resources designed to support youth workers and community educators in empowering young migrant women through social inclusion, active citizenship and entrepreneurship in Community Gardens (CG).

From ideas to practice: the SUCCSEEDS Collection

The partners are developing the SUCCSEEDS Collection hands-on exercises, an innovative set of activities and practical educational tools designed to complement the learning materials available through the Digital Platform.

The Collection will help youth workers and community educators transform knowledge into action by providing ready-to-use activities that can be adapted to different educational and community contexts. Through participatory and practical learning, the exercises will support young migrant women in developing skills, exploring entrepreneurial opportunities, strengthening their confidence and taking a more active role in their communities.

Building the SUCCSEEDS Digital Platform

At the same time, work is progressing on the SUCCSEEDS Digital Platform and online Learning Programme, an open educational resource developed specifically for youth workers and community educators.

The Platform will offer accessible learning materials and a structured online learning experience covering key aspects of social inclusion, active citizenship, green entrepreneurship and Community Gardens. By strengthening their knowledge and competences, users will be better equipped to integrate these approaches into their daily work with young migrant women.

Connecting learning with real-life action

The Collection and Digital Platform are being developed as complementary resources: the Platform provides the knowledge and learning pathway, while the Collection brings that knowledge into practice through hands-on activities.

Together, they will create a practical learning ecosystem where knowledge becomes skills, skills become action, and action creates new opportunities for inclusion, participation and green entrepreneurship.

SUCCSEEDS continues to grow, turning community-based learning into opportunities for young migrant women to connect, participate and thrive.

3rd Transnational Project Meeting, Oslo

In September 2025, the SUCCSEEDS partnership met in Oslo for its 3rd Partners Meeting, marking an important step forward in the development of the project's learning resources. Partners reviewed the design and implementation of the online Learning Programme, as well as the creation of its digital learning materials. Particular attention was also given to the Action Plan for the Collection of Hands-on Exercises, including its structure, design and development process. Finally, the partnership discussed the implementation and assessment of the Piloting Stage, preparing the work plan that will guide the testing of the Learning Programme and practical exercises once the resources are finalised. The meeting provided an opportunity to align the next steps, strengthen cooperation among partners and ensure that the SUCCSEEDS tools are practical, accessible and ready to support youth workers and community educators in their work with young migrant women.
