Fostering active citizenship and entrepreneurship among young migrant women through Community Gardens

From Learning to Practice: Empowering Change Through Community Gardens

The SUCCSEEDS project is entering an exciting phase: its innovative learning resources are moving from development into real-world educational practice. Through the Digital Platform, the online Learning Programme and the piloting of hands-on exercises, youth workers and community educators are gaining new tools to support social inclusion, active citizenship and green entrepreneurship among young migrant women.

Discover the SUCCSEEDS Online Learning Programme

The SUCCSEEDS Digital Platform and online Learning Programme provide a flexible learning environment specifically designed for youth workers and community educators. The programme is structured around five Learning Units, creating a progressive pathway from empowerment and skills development to sustainable entrepreneurship:

LU1 – Empowering Young Migrant Women through Green Entrepreneurship
Understanding the green transition and supporting young migrant women in overcoming barriers to entrepreneurship.

LU2 – Digital and Financial Skills for Migrant Women's Green Businesses
Developing the digital and financial competences needed to build confidence and independence in green entrepreneurship.

LU3 – Community Gardens as Spaces for Social and Economic Inclusion
Exploring Community Gardens as practical spaces for empowerment, sustainability, participation and income generation.

LU4 – Leadership, Networking and Social Impact for Migrant Women
Strengthening leadership, networking and social-impact skills to encourage active participation and entrepreneurial development.

LU5 – Scaling and Sustaining Green Businesses for Long-Term Impact
Supporting young migrant women in launching, developing and sustaining green income-generating activities.

From Learning to Action: The Piloting Phase

The next step is putting learning into practice. SUCCSEEDS partners are involving youth workers and community educators in the piloting phase to implement and assess the online Learning Programme in real-world educational environments. Their experience and feedback will help evaluate the relevance, usability and effectiveness of the learning resources and techniques.

At the same time, youth workers and community educators will engage young migrant women in the piloting of the Collection of Hands-on Exercises, bringing practical activities into their educational and community contexts.

This hands-on approach will allow participants to test the project results in practice while strengthening their own knowledge, skills and abilities to foster social inclusion and active citizenship through entrepreneurship and Community Gardens

Growing Skills, Creating Opportunities

The piloting phase represents an important bridge between learning and real-life impact. By bringing the SUCCSEEDS resources into community settings, the project is creating opportunities to test, adapt and strengthen its approach — helping youth workers, educators and young migrant women turn knowledge into action.

Capacity Building, Valladolid (Spain)

In February 2026, SUCCSEEDS partners came together in Valladolid for a dedicated Capacity Building session, designed to prepare partner staff for the implementation of the project's results during the piloting phase. The session provided partners with the opportunity to jointly review the tools, methodologies and processes developed throughout the project and strengthen their understanding of how to apply them effectively in real-world educational contexts. This shared learning experience established a common approach and development strategy for the Piloting Stage, which will take place with youth workers, community educators and young migrant women in Belgium, Spain, Norway and Ireland. By building the capacity of partner staff first, SUCCSEEDS ensures that knowledge and expertise can be effectively transferred to end users and subsequently applied with beneficiaries, creating a clear pathway from project results to practical implementation and lasting impact.
